EDITOR'S LOG

Star Date 21/10/2024

You can find a Welcome Bulletin at:

championships.worldbridge.org/buenosaires24-files/welcome.pdf

Please pay special attention to the request of the ABA President Fernando Lema to 'flood the networks with news about the championships.'

It has almost become a tradition that the first issue of the Log recounts the adventures of those travelling to the Championships. A storm prevented planes taking off from Manchester, causing England Seniors David Robinson and Tony Sowter to miss their connecting flight from London that arrived in Buenos Aires on Monday afternoon. The last I heard they were on their way to Madrid to get a flight.

You can have a lot of fun discussing who the eventual winners of the team events will be. Anyone who is brave enough to make a prediction that they are willing to commit to print is welcome to send it for inclusion in the Bulletin. Drop by the office (lower ground floor level) or email it to: markhorton007@hotmail.com

We have a great team of writers covering the Championships, but even their eagle eyes cannot be expected to catch everything. If you have something interesting to report drop by the office or send an email.

The last incarnation of the World Bridge Games was the 15th edition, in Wroclaw 2016, the wonderful Polish city that subsequently played host to the 16th edition of the World Bridge Series in 2022. Here is a selection of the deals that set the pulses racing 8 years ago:

Here declarer South led the $\lozenge 8$ and declarer won with the $\lozenge A$ and played six rounds of trumps, South discarding three diamonds and the $\heartsuit 5$ while North pitched three clubs and a diamond. Declarer cashed the $\lozenge K$, went to dummy with the $\heartsuit A$, ruffed a heart and exited with the $\P Q$. South could win, but had to lead into the split tenace.

Not a bad way to tie the deal!

In the other room Roy Welland and Sabine Auken had stopped in 3% for +150.

West led the ♥A and declarer ruffed, went to dummy with the $\Diamond A$ and led the $\spadesuit J$. Had East covered there would have been no story, but that was hardly an obvious play and when the jack held declarer ruffed a heart, ruffed a spade, ruffed a heart, ruffed a spade, ruffed a heart, cashed the A and the A and exited with the $\lozenge 9$. His last two cards were the $\clubsuit Q10$ which added up to a majestic +1540.

In due course the different explanations given to EW resulted in the score being adjusted to +200 for NS.

As it happens the favourable position in diamonds delivers all the tricks in notrumps, but +1440 was still worth 75%.

I have no doubts that we will be equally entertained here in Buenos Aires!
